3) CSS border-color

- There are three methods to set the color of the border.
- Name: It specifies the color name. For example: "red".
- RGB: It specifies the RGB value of the color. For example: "rgb(255,0,0)".
- Hex: It specifies the hex value of the color. For example: "#ff0000".
- There's also a border color named "transparent". If the border color is not set it is inherited from the color property of the element.

CSS-contd...

CSS Syntax
A CSS rule set contains a selector and a declaration block.

Selector Selector indicates the HTML element you want to style. It could be any tag like <h1>,  etc.

Declaration Block: The declaration block can contain one or more declarations separated by a semicolon. For the above examples, there are two declarations:
color: yellow;
font-size: 1.2em;

Each declaration contains a property name and value, separated by a colon.

Property: A Property is a type of attribute of HTML element. It could be color, border etc.

Value: Values are assigned to CSS properties. In the above example, value "yellow" is assigned to color property.
Selector(Property1: value1; Property2: value2; .....)

Report:

English language plays an essential role in our lives as it helps in communication. English is important for students as it broadens their minds, develops emotional skills, improve the quality of life by providing job opportunities. The lecture was very much needed for times where the simple use of English is ignored. The lecture was short, simple and easy to understand. The speaker explained the need of the English language. Most importantly it was a quite interactive session which ignited the student's critical thinking and imagination. It helped the students to explore themselves and enabled them to overcome their stage fear. The speaker encouraged the students by complimenting for their participation.
